2023

Recently we had the first autumn storm of the year. The snow disappeared quickly with wind and rain. But the weather changed last night, so we had a bit of white color on the field this morning.

We have had a "normal" year with tourists, work and income. After closing off and winterizing the outdoor area and cabins, we worked a bit, but also had time for some relaxation and Christmas preparations.

Our tourists have had lots of nice catches, especially of big halibuts. The weather was nice almost the whole year, so fishing was mainly fun all the time.

Are and Jostein have worked a lot with tractor and excavators to move a lot of soil and stone at the camp site area after the end of the season. The hydraulic blasting equipment has been used extensively and has made the work considerably easier. Anne Britt has sold unused things and stuff to get more space in our house and our storage buildings. Washing, baking and decorating are now in full swing. Jostein had planned to fish for a couple of days this autumn and left a boat ready in the marina. Despite many days with sunshine and no wind, the boat is still unused. The wikings of Norway are decreasing in number.

This autumn, Anne Britt and Jostein were at the mineral fair in Munich. We traveled with Colorline Oslo-Kiel-Oslo. On the return trip we stopped by Barth and brought a new boat with us.

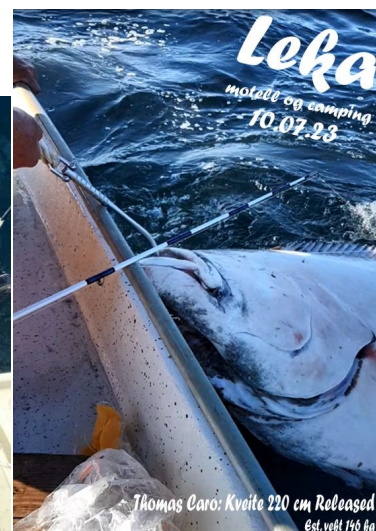

In November we were all in Trondheim and helped Oda a bit with the new house at Byåsen. We got a lot done and will return in the new year to finish the remaining tasks.
